CONSERVATION NOTES By George Cavros, Conservation Chair

Sierra Scores Big Conservation Victory

The Sierra Club's Florida chapter scored a big victory towards preserving Florida's environmental heritage, at the same time it was being assailed by the Miami Herald, Governor Bush, and some conservation groups.

Sierra Club filed suit over a state-brokered deal between developer Syd Kitson and several Southwest Florida counties to preserve a majority of Babcock Ranch, a pristine tract of land reminiscent of "old Florida." While the deal seemed good enough for most folks, the Sierra Club concluded that it was too heavily weighted towards the developer and violated local land use laws.

Last month, Kitson settled with Sierra by agreeing to cluster the development in one area – sparing an additional 2,000 acres from bulldozers, and creating a large wildlife corridor for endangered species such as the Florida panther. Moreover, the settlement included limits on pesticide and fertilizer use, thereby protecting the local watershed

September 5th: Everglades Photography Slide Show and Talk by Brian Call.

Brian Call, a self-taught fine art nature photographer, realized early on in his life that he shared a strong connection with nature. Since moving to South Florida in 1991, Brian has been artistically documenting the flora and fauna of the Everglades. Big Cypress National Preserve, Biscayne National Preserve, Biscayne National Park, Fakahatchee Strand State Park, and various ecosystems of the region. He has also been very active with efforts to save the Florida panther and involved with other environmental issues concerning the protection of wilderness habitats throughout the region. Through his nature photography, Brian's goal has not only been for his images to inspire people to connect with the very special natural areas here in South Florida, but also to inspire people to connect with, preserve, and protect natural areas in their own localities. Brian was also recently featured on a PBS program on the Florida panther.

Because of the election, this month only, we will meet in the Exhibit Hall rather than in the Mangrove Hall at Anne Kolb Nature Center in Hollywood. Take I-95 to the Sheridan Street exit, head East past U.S. 1, over the bridge, and on the left within 1/2 mile, look for the lighted Anne Kolb sign. If you go over the Intracoastal, you missed it. Doors open at 7:00 PM. Committee reports begin at 7:30 and the program begins at 8:00. The meeting is open to the public at no charge. For more information contact Harold Hancock at 561-417-0216. from pollution, and even included green building standards that will conserve valuable energy.

Sierra negotiated a much improved agreement over the previously brokered deal. It was a well-crafted conservation compromise that will better preserve and protect one of our last remaining pristine lands for future generations.

This is why the Sierra Club is the largest and most effective environmental advocacy group in the state. Congratulations to the club!!

South Florida's Dirty Little Secret

The growing number of news reports and studies released recently are shedding light on one of Southeast Florida's dirtiest little secrets: unlike the rest of the state, we dump much of our wastewater (partially treated sewage) offshore through giant pipes called ocean outfalls.

"It's ironic that a place built on the good fortune of its coastline would treat it like a cesspool, but that has been the practice for the last few decades in Miami-Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties, which have two ocean outfalls apiece," opined Jim Harper in recent story in the Biscayne Boulevard Times.

Every day these six pipes send close to 400 million gallons of partially treated wastewater into the sea. The discharges send out nutrients that create algae blooms that smother and kill coral reefs, which are critical ecological gems and a local economic asset.

A new report by the University of Florida on South Florida's six outfalls lays out their current status and sounds the call for alternatives. The leading alternative is to reuse as much water as possible. It is both environmentally responsible and relatively affordable for our counties, according to the report's projections.

We hope you enjoy our newsletter. Why not join us right now? Come along on an outing. Get involved, learn about local issues and how they affect you and your community. Just use the membership form on the back cover.

FROM THE EDITOR – COMINGS AND GOINGS

I hope everyone had a good summer. We're back, and there have been some changes in the group over the summer.

Our Outings Chair for many years, Jackie Fisher, is stepping down from her position. Under her leadership, we have visited and learned about some of the most beautiful and endangered places in Broward County. Jackie's sure hand at organizing and locating the outings will be sorely missed. In 2000 Jackie was honored with the national Sierra Club Otter award, given for outstanding contributions to the group outings program. She will remain active in the group and will continue to offer her assistance and advice as well as going to new outings as she can.

Also leaving us is Program Chair Joyce Tarnow. She is moving out of the county to the center of Florida where the environment is still fairly unsullied. In Joyce's 35 years in Broward County, she has lent her energy and drive to many worthy causes, including the Sierra Club. Joyce has been a leader in defending our environment, women's rights and reproductive freedoms, free speech, and in fighting rampant overdevelopment. To many in the Broward activist community, Joyce's name is a watchword for excellence in fighting the good fight. Perhaps best known for the Women's Clinic in Ft. Lauderdale, which provided reproductive health and prenatal care to low income women without question or challenge, Joyce has long been known as a champion of individual rights and freedoms. Her dedication to the environment took a strong upturn last year when she spent a month crewing on a Sea Shepherd ship, dedicated to protecting the whales and baby seals. This is perhaps best representative of her devotion to the little person - being willing to throw herself in front of the danger that hunters pose to these elegant and beautiful creatures. Her dedication to people is even stronger. Joyce will be severely missed by all in Broward and by our group. Her energy and drive will be difficult to replace. All of us join in wishing Joyce bon voyage and best of luck in whatever she does.

On a happier note, we would like to welcome our new Outing Chair, Judy Kuchta. Judy is a Miami native who moved to Hollywood in 2001. She has been a member of the Sierra Club since 1983 and has served on several Sierra Club Committees, including Membership, Political Fundraising, and Outings. She has enjoyed many South Florida outings, as well as one to Georgia for whitewater rafting, to the Claire Tappan Lodge in the Sierra Nevada Mountains of California, and to the Dry Tortugas. "On these trips I've created bonds and relationships with many wonderful people who care about the environment." Judy said. "I feel strongly about teaching environmental sensitivity on outings. And I'd like to organize a snow skiing outing and stay at the Claire Tappan Lodge. I dream of doing 10,000 islands in the Everglades National Park, too. But I know we have to start small and short in our outings in order to develop a core, strong group who are committed to doing the more challenging and lengthy trips. I look forward to working with Jim Gross, the Miami Outings Chair. He's an unfathomable resource." We're glad

Palm Beach already leads the three counties in reuse, and its Delray Beach sewage outfall has been monitored by Palm Beach County Reef Rescue, a volunteer group that documents the sewer outfalls' impact on the reef system. That group recently won a concession from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection mandating a one year federal study of the Delray outfall on the causal relationship between outfall nutrients and coral die-offs.

Of the three SE Florida counties, Broward is pulling up the rear with water reuse levels at less than 5%. According to the South Florida Water Management District, Broward County has plans to shut down its ocean outfalls and move toward 100 percent reuse of its wastewater within ten years.

This is unlikely to occur, as it requires the cooperation of all of Broward County's municipalities. While reuse is a lofty long-term goal, the most immediate and effective action Broward County and local municipalities can take is to implement advanced waste water treatment before either pumping our wastewater out to sea or pumping it underground through Underground Injection Control wells.

The Sierra Club is closely monitoring the Broward County outfall originating in Pompano Beach, and the city of Hollywood outfall. It has been well documented that sewage outfalls are degrading our oceans and reefs, and the Palm Beach study should confirm earlier scientific conclusions. Based on this information, The Sierra Club will challenge the two outfalls in Broward County as their permits come up for renewal.

water consumption in Broward County? Or that landscape runoff is a major source of water pollution? That is why NatureScape is an important part of Broward County's water conservation program, which benefits eople, plants and animals. Our plant choices and the way we maintain our yard can impact our future water supplies.

NatureScape encourages the use of native plants in landscaping. These plants are uniquely adapted to grow in South Florida. Natives generally require little watering once established, and are naturally pest resistant, which means less use of expensive and toxic chemicals. So by using native plants we conserve water and reduce pollution while maintaining a healthy landscape.
